About FMQT Next Generation

Children in Scotland and YouthLink Scotland, funded by the Scottish Government, are running a First Minister's Question Time for Children and Young People. First Minister's Question Time (FMQT) Next Generation aims to provide a platform for young people to have their views heard and acted upon, an opportunity for young people to express themselves.

This project plays a role in creating opportunities for children and young people to have a meaningful say about how Scotland is run, particularly for those too young to vote or who find it difficult to have their voices heard otherwise.

FMQT Next Generation supports the realisation of the United Nations Convention of the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) by prioritising children and young people's participation in matters affecting them.

About this resource

This resource can be used in conjunction with Getting Ready for FMQT Next Generation to identify young people's priorities and issues they care about. It is designed to be used as a companion when watching FMQT Next Generation clips.

United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child

Article 2

The Convention applies to everyone: whatever their race, religion or abilities, whatever they think or say, whatever type of family they come from.

Article 3

All adults should always do what is best for you.

Article 4

You have the right to have your rights made a reality by government.

Article 12

You have the right to an opinion and for it to be listened to and taken seriously.

Article 13

You have the right to find out things and say what you think, through making art, speaking and writing, unless it breaks the rights of others.

FMQT Next Generation supports the realisation of the UNCRC by prioritising children and young people's participation in matters affecting them.

Why are we asking the First Minister questions?

The First Minister is head of the Scottish Government and ultimately responsible for all decisions and policies that the Scottish Government make. The First Minister represents Scotland in all devolved areas. This means that the elected First Minister is expected to have a clear vision for running the country and to make decisions and frame policies for education, health, transport, police and fire services, children's services, farming, forestry and so on. There is a full list of the issues devolved to the Scottish Parliament in Appendix A.

FMQT Next Generation is an opportunity for children and young people to have their views heard and acted upon at national level. Asking questions of Scotland's First Minister, particularly for those too young to have a vote or whose voices are seldom heard, allows children and young people to express their views and needs directly to the Scottish Government.

Where to watch

The full FMQT Next Generation film will be available from Friday 14th September 2018 on the YouthLink Scotland and Children in Scotland websites. It will also be available in Glow.

There will be a special FMQT Next Generation episode of Scotland Tonight at 10.30pm on Thursday 13th September. It will also be available to watch on STV Player after the programme airs.

Share your photos and thoughts about FMQT Next Generation over on social media. You can find us at the accounts below, and of course, via #FMQTNextGeneration.

Activities

The following activities have been designed to support children and young people's further engagement with FMQT Next Generation. They are all designed to be used alongside clips of FMQT Next Generation.

Practitioners should consider the age, stage and development of the children and young people they work with and adapt the activities accordingly. Practitioners are encouraged to use other activities to complement this work.

Agree/Disagree

45 minutes – 1 hour

Materials: None

Purpose

This activity allows the group to explore varying opinions and to reflect on young people's political participation in Scotland.

Watch clips of the FMQT Next Generation film. Label opposite ends of the room 'agree' and 'disagree'. Young people should move to the area of the room that reflects their opinion after you have asked each of the following questions. Once young people have chosen a position, you should ask them why they chose that position.

- Young people are listened to in Scotland.
- I know who to speak to when there is a problem in my area.
- Some young people have more opportunity than others to have their voices heard.
- The topics discussed in the film are important to me.
- Voting in elections is the best way to have my voice heard.
- It is important that politicians listen to young people before making decisions.

Manifesto writing

45 minutes - 1 hour

Materials: Manifesto template [Appendix C]

Purpose

Young people start thinking about issues they would change in their communities.

In groups, write a manifesto using the template in Appendix C. Once each group has completed their manifesto, they should present it to the group explaining why people should vote for them. For additional ideas, use the devolved issues cards in Appendix A.

Optional

Give each young person a sticker dot. They can vote for their favourite manifesto by placing the dot on the manifesto. The manifesto with the most dots has been elected to lead the country.

Consider allowing time for young people to write to their local MSPs about their most important issues.

If I was First Minister for a day

1 hour – 1.5 hours

Materials: Depends on chosen methods

Purpose

This activity gives young people a further way to consider the areas important to them.

This activity can be carried out using various methods, depending on the age and stage of the young people you are working with. For example, children could work in groups to produce a mural of what their world would look like if they made all the decisions. Young people could write a poem or story depicting their opinions, or even give a short speech.

Questions to think about:

- What are my priorities? Use the devolved issues cards in Appendix A as guidance.
- Who is it most important to please – my constituents, the media or my party?
- What are the consequences of my decisions?

Optional

Run this activity with Slice of the Pie [below] to give young people further insight into decision making at government level.

Slice of the Pie

1 hour

Materials: Budget worksheet [Appendix B]

Purpose

Young people will have an insight into decisions made by national government and the different areas that must be considered.

Optional

Before starting this activity, it might be useful to recap with the group about the decisions made by the Scottish Government, including the Scottish Budget. You can refer to the devolved issues cards in Appendix A for guidance on the issues devolved to the Scottish Parliament.

In small groups, young people should use the worksheet in Appendix B to decide the budget for Scotland. Each group has £100 to share between each area. You could also use Monopoly money (or equivalent) to represent the £100.

Once groups have decided their budget, lead a plenary discussion on each group's decisions. They should be able to justify their decision to give each amount.

Pizza Feedback

20 – 30 minutes

Materials: Flipchart paper with pizza outline drawn on, markers or stickers

Purpose

This is the first FMQT Next Generation event and feedback from children and young people will help us to make the event even better next time. After watching the films and running your chosen activities, use this quick and visual method to collect feedback.

Using the pizza outline below, young people will give their feedback on FMQT Next Generation. Each slice corresponds to a different question. There is one slice per feedback statement below. They should draw a pizza topping (alternatively, use stickers) according to their view. Topping close to the middle = agree strongly. Topping close to the crust = disagree strongly.

1. I enjoyed watching FMQT Next Generation.
2. It was easy to understand FMQT Next Generation.
3. I feel like children and young people are being listened to by decision makers.
4. I would be interested in speaking to decision makers about issues that are important to me.
5. The questions were important for children and young people in Scotland.
6. I now have a better understanding of politics in Scotland.
7. One word to describe FMQT Next Generation
8. Any other comments

Send us a photo of your finished pizza on social media using #FMQTNextGeneration. You can also email your feedback to us at erogan@childreninscotland.org.uk.

You decide - A political literacy resource

This resource is aimed at developing professional capacity in practitioners, schools and community settings to develop and embed the key skills of political literacy in young people. The resource introduces the key skills of research, debate, and participation in political literacy. It includes workshop and reading materials supporting the professional development of political literacy skills.

Learner Participation in Educational Settings (3-18)

Guidance and support materials to help schools and early years settings develop an understanding of learner participation.

How good is OUR school?

How good is OUR school? has been developed in the Year of Young People to support learner participation in school self-evaluation. By using the framework, children and young people can work with staff and partners in their school community to take responsibility for leading aspects of self-evaluation and contribute evidence to whole-school self-evaluation

You have £100 to share amongst these areas to create a functioning Scotland. This represents the Scottish Budget which is much more than £100! The total should add up to £100. There is some extra space at the bottom for your own ideas.

Remember – you should have a reason why you have chosen each amount. Is it because you think one area is more important than another? Why do you think that?

Budget Area	How much?	Budget Area	How much?
Hospitals and GPs		Libraries, museums, galleries
Police		Childcare
Fire services		Energy
